What is The Met Club?

The Met Club is a unique institution. A place where business people meet and socialise, and discuss the one thing they are all passionate about - business.

It is a relaxed, informal and supportive members' club where friendships are made, alliances formed and, as a result, deals are struck.

The trappings of so-called networking clubs are notable by their absence. Overt selling and pressure referrals are strictly prohibited. It's not that sort of club.

The Met Club is for people for whom business is about more than simply making a 'fast buck'. It is where senior decision makers gather once a month to eat, catch up, laugh, listen, learn, and maybe, just maybe, do a spot of business.

So, in summary:

The Met Club is a business club - an institution where likeminded, influential, senior decision makers and entrepreneurs enjoy each others company; they listen to and express new ideas;

learn from the experiences of others; introduce established contacts to new ones; and nurture friendships.

During the present economic downturn could your company benefit from meeting more potential new business contacts?

Face to face contact has been proven to be far more effective than cold calling, mail shots and advertising.

From building business relationships through trust many of our members have found external work through referral.

An investment from £25 + VAT per month is a very cost effective way of making potential new business contacts?
